SUMMARY

I am a full-stack developer specializing in backend development using PHP with a strong framework Laravel. My expertise lies in developing efficient APIs, managing databases, and ensuring seamless communication between the server and the client. While my main focus is backend development, I am also well-versed in front-end technologies and have hands-on experience with React.js, Next.js, and Typescript. This allows me to actively contribute to front-end projects, collaborating with the UI/UX designers and implementing the required functionalities.
